

Dr. Michael Mastro is Branch Head of the Power and Advanced Materials Branch at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory. Dr. Mastro's research focuses on the fabrication of semiconductor materials and devices, and the development of numerical models and machine learning algorithms. Dr. Mastro received a B.S. in Chemical Engineering from Johns Hopkins University in 1997 and a Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering from the University of Florida in 2001.