

Jonathan Heiner is a Plans and Programs Engineer at HQ Air Force Materiel Command Engineering Directorate's Systems Engineering Division working on DAF microelectronics strategy and policy. Previously Mr. Heiner worked at Air force Research Laboratory's Information Directorate as a senior Computer Engineer within the Trusted Systems Branch managing the development of the government owned T-CORE secure processor. Mr. Heiner's research focus for the last 15 years has been in hardware-based cyber security, digital design, and secure edge computing. Mr. Heiner graduated from Brigham Young University with a Masters of Science in Electrical Engineering with a focus in Computer Engineering.